Majella Wines Vintage News

Vintage started in early March, about two and a half weeks ahead of normal and finished about three weeks ahead. Crops, especially the Cabernet Sauvignon, were very low, but the quality was excellent.

There may not be a lot of Majella 2006 around later on, but it will be very, very good. Most growers in Coonawarra also reported very low cropping levels this year.

The nice reviews of Majella wines keep coming in:

Majella 2003 Cabernet Sauvignon: Here's a scrumptious cabernet... It makes me wonder why Coonawarra grows anything other than cabernet. Beautifully perfumed and structured, it's an elegant, supple, intense wine that seems nowhere near as strong as 14 per cent, and yet it rolls around the palate 'til you don't want it to leave. 94 points. Philip White, Adelaide Advertiser.

Majella 2003 Shiraz. Shiraz doesn't quite achieve the reputation of Coonawarra's cabernet, but the best are excellent. Majella's dense, purplish '03 is still youthful with an essency nose of blackcurrants, red berries and a whisper of coconutty oak. The palate has lovely intensity, defined tangy flavour and fine tannins.

The Coonawarra Roadshow's a popular event to catch up with the wine makers.

Thursday, 24th August at the Melbourne Town Hall.

New Look Pericles Ouzo

Alepat Taylor has just launched it's "new look" Pericles Ouzo and are excited by the results. The new packaging still retains the traditional elements of the original label but has now given the label a fresh and contemporary edge. The re-vamped design will continue to appeal to traditional Ouzo drinkers whilst also attracting the younger 20s market with its clean, modern image.

Eddie Baitz first created Pericles Ouzo in Victoria over 30 years ago. The original recipe has been so well accepted by the market that the same blend is still used today by Alepat Taylor, where it is made at their premises in Brunswick, Victoria. Premium grade Australian spirit is blended with superior quality aniseed oil to create the smooth, aromatic flavour that Pericles Ouzo is renowned for.

Pericles Ouzo is proudly 100 per cent Australian owned and is sold throughout Australia by:
